Evaluation Report Conclusions

In the most* recent annual evaluation report, more than 3,300 families completed the Colorado Family Support Assessment 2.0 (CFSA 2.0). Of these families, 62% remained engaged receiving at least one CFSA 2.0 follow-up assessment. Growth models, a type of advanced analysis, revealed families who screened positive in one or more areas of need on the required screening tool were lower in Economic Self-Sufficiency at baseline but demonstrated greater growth in Economic Self-Sufficiency over the year than families who did not screen with an unmet need. This conclusion suggests that families experiencing unmet needs at center entry may be especially benefiting from Family Development services. *September 2018

Findings

Families reported significant gains in income, cash savings, debt management, housing, employment, food security, child care, children's education, physical health, mental health and transportation.

The percentage of families who indicated a safe, stable, or thriving situation increased significantly in most areas as well as in areas where families indicated a readiness for change.

Overall, families demonstrated statistically significant gains in Economic Self-Sufficiency and Health.

Results

Families see improvement in targeted areas for change, but improvement can also extend to other areas.

There was significant movement out of an in-crisis or vulnerable situation to one that is more safe and stable.

Families served by Family Resource Centers were moving towards greater self-reliance.
